

Chris Engst – Director, Product and Marketing – Babylon by TELUS Health

Chris Engst is a Director, Product and Marketing in the Consumer Health division of TELUS Health and is responsible for managing and growing Babylon by TELUS Health across Canada. Babylon by TELUS Health is an innovative virtual care solution that allows thousands of patients to access local doctors and other health professionals right from their mobile device. Chris was responsible for building and launching Babylon by TELUS Health and now oversees product, marketing and stakeholder relations.

Prior to TELUS, Chris was a Management Consultant with A.T. Kearney and advised medium and large enterprises across North America in the pharmaceutical, financial, retail and industrial sectors. Earlier in his career, Chris worked in occupational health and safety, implementing large scale safety programs in hospitals and residential care centres across BC. Chris has an MBA from the Richard Ivey School of Business and Kinesiology Degree from Simon Fraser University.