

Randy Osei, Founder, ED,
Athlete Technology Group

Randy Osei is a serial social entrepreneur with over 10 years of experience as a Brand and Business Manager at the intersection of sport, entertainment and marketing. Randy built Rozaay Management, a creative marketing and branding agency with expertise in partnerships and creating value through long-lasting relationships. Rozaay Management has a reputation of continually exceeding client expectations across various activation verticals across North America. His latest venture, the Athlete Technology Group, is a digital marketplace that centralizes events, education and entrepreneurship focused on connecting and building athlete and tech entrepreneurs. ATG's latest launch, the Training Ground app, aims to prepare athletes for life after sport with on-demand skill development programs that increase readiness for the future of work. This is just another example of Randy's value creation model - connecting people, building brand and creating experiences.
